

Board Governance Courses

929.1 Current Issues in Policy Development

Policies set the standard for board behavior. Attendees learn to view policies as proactive tools to establish a standard of board behavior required for governance in today's electric cooperative boardroom. This course revisits the fundamentals of governance and the roles policies play in contributing to effective governance. Participants take part in discussions about current issues facing rural electric cooperatives and how the governance function contributes to the cooperative and adds value. As these issues are discussed and debated, a sample set of policies are used to show examples of policies relevant to addressing today's governance issues.

955.1 Your Board's Culture: It Impact on Effectiveness

Directors have official responsibilities but they also tend to conform to the unofficial norms and ways of behaving that evolve uniquely in each boardroom. Such local norms, approved behaviors and ways of thinking that come to be adopted by a group constitute a board's culture. Some cultures can promote board effectiveness, but others lead to conflict, complacency or similar counter-productive behaviors. This course explains the concept of boardroom culture through an examination of real board case studies, and it discusses why directors should understand and monitor their own boardroom culture.

"The education of our people should be a lifelong process by which we continue to feed new vigor into the lifestream of the Nation through intelligent, reasoned decisions. Let us think of education as the means of developing our greatest abilities, because in each of us there is a private hope and dream which, fulfilled, can be translated into benefit for everyone and greater strength for our nation."

Social Skills for Cooperatives: Meeting the Members In the Age of Digital

Gone are the days of only serving the co-op members face-to-face. Today's co-op employee must not only communicate across many generations but do so through the use of many different types of technology. This workshop will provide co-op employees with the critical communication skills they need to meet and exceed their members' expectations in the age of iPhones and Facebook. Topics include:

- LEARN practical techniques for handling personal encounters with co-op members, both in person and online through social media.
- PICK the words that communicate confidence while avoiding the words and phrases that suggest insecurity.
- UNDERSTAND the importance of differentiating the online critic from an online troll.
- RECOGNIZE AND CONTROL what is being communicated through body language.
- HOW to manage the member who wants to film their encounters at the co-op. Should you allow it and why or why not.
- KNOW when private information becomes public. How to contain the chatter while serving the members.

711.1 Everyone Communicates; Few Connect: Tools for Bridging the Gap

Clear, consistent communication is the foundation of teams working well together to get the job done in support of the co-op's mission. According to a survey by the communication consulting and training group Interact, the majority (69%) of supervisors are often uncomfortable communicating with employees. Understanding what makes people tick and adjusting your personal style improves communication and avoids a lot of headaches and heartburn. Take this opportunity to assess your communication strengths and weaknesses, recognize your assumptions and practice techniques for improving communication skills in both business and personal communications.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

- Understand your communication style and recognize the styles of your team members and boss; appreciate how differences in communication styles impact how a message is received.
  - Learn active listening skills and how to use them effectively.
  - Learn a 3-step formula to give feedback to your team members and other colleagues.
  - Understand the impact that body language and tone of voice have on interpersonal communication.
  - Describe the impact that stereotyping, personal filters, triggers and assumptions have on interpersonal communication and how to deal with these unconscious components of communication.
- Identify the communication styles of others and adjust yours to improve communication.

KEY TOPICS:

- The role of the supervisor as a communication pipeline
  - "Above the surface" versus "below the surface" components of communication
  - Impact of body language, tone of voice and word choice on your message
  - Active listening skills
  - Personality styles
  - Learning styles
- Impact of personal filters, assumptions and values on your interpretation of what others are saying

Understanding Service Account Collections and Disconnects

For most business enterprises, collecting past-due debts is time-consuming, stressful and subtracts from the organization's overall productivity. There are federal and state laws with which to comply, as well as the overall customer and public relations issues to consider. This program is designed to assist utility service providers in collecting past-due accounts with a maximum of return on resources invested, minimal hassle, and in compliance with all applicable rules and regulations. Using class discussion, small-group activities and practice sessions, attendees will gain insight into the following key topics:

KEY TOPICS

- Key provisions of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, and applicable terms of the Consumer Credit Protection Act of 1977
- Rules and regulations covering service discontinuance/disconnection
- Collections from estates and bankruptcies
- Small claims courts and collection agencies
- Tips and techniques designed to maximize the effectiveness of communication regarding cutoffs and past-due bill collections
